

Walteria Acquires Costly Residents in 12 Chinchillas

New arrivals in the community are 12 chinchillas at the chinchilla farm operated by Ardis B. Stagner, at 244th and Ocean avenue. Worth $3,200 a pair, these are quite the most expensive items per weight that the community has acquired for some time.

The chinchillas weigh from 20 to 35 ounces and, unlike most fur-bearing animals, are not afraid of people or are they vicious. They can be handled and never bite unless someone hurts them. As they have no odor, make no noise and can be handled with one's best gloves there is not the objection to a chinchilla farm that there is to other farms where animals are raised.

The babies are born full-furred with their eyes open and in a few hours scamper about. Stagner extends a cordial invitation to the public to visit the farm. While this is not the first chinchilla farm in the county, the climate at Walteria is considered ideal for raising these animals. The climate, says Stagner, is just right, not too cold or too hot, not too damp or too dry. The animals will be sold entirely as breeders. They would make ideal pets but for two objections: they chew rugs and chairs worse than puppies and they are SLIGHTLY expensive.

Mrs. Lopez in Charge of Local Riding Academy

The Edwards Riding Academy at the corner of East Road and Torrance boulevard has changed hands and is now known as the Lopez Riding Academy. Mrs. Nora Lopez, the new owner, is an accomplished horsewoman and she has chosen her stock with care in order to give the public the best horses for either beginners or expert riders.
